JULIUS EICHENAUER

Julius Eichenauer, who was an employe of the New York Public Library system for thirty-six years until his retirement last January, died Saturday at his home, 1,950 Washington Avenue, Bronx, in his seventy-first year. From 1905 to 1938 he was custodian of the Tremont branch at 1,866 Washington Avenue, residing in the library building. A daughter, Mrs. R. Lang, survives.
